

February 14 – March 3, 2018
Monday through Saturday
9am – 6pm
MIT | Keller Gallery
Room 7-408

This garden is a town

Anne Whiston Spirn
West Philadelphia Landscape Project

THIS GARDEN IS A TOWN: AN EXHIBIT

Anne Whiston Spirn, West Philadelphia Landscape Project

Gardening is a life-embracing act, an act of faith and hope. It can also be a political act. This is especially the case in low-income neighborhoods where thriving community gardens stand in stark contrast to vacant land and abandoned buildings. This exhibit presents eight community gardens of different types, sizes, and political structure, which were originally documented in 1988-1990. Photographs and commentary from 2017 record how each garden has changed over the past three decades.

Full Show 19 vertical panels (36" x 64"), 5 introductory panels, 13 garden panels, and 1 acknowledgments panel

Smaller Show 16 vertical panels (36" x 64"), 5 introductory panels, 11 garden panels

Space Required 60 linear feet (full show)
50 linear feet (smaller show)

Fees $75. No shipping fees

Delivery Shipped as digital files ready for printing on a standard plotter

Contact Anne Whiston Spirn (spirn@mit.edu)

This garden is a town

Anne Whiston Spirn
West Philadelphia Landscape Project

